3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. Last version. * Grunts can attack and block once a minute. * Starships can attack and block once a minute. * No spawn limits, but they have to first align themselves before they can attack. * Game over if one of your attackers gets killed. One of the nastiest and most fun strategy games I've ever played. Probably among the most difficult. The main idea is to be the last ship left alive. Start by having as many ships as you can. You need to maximize your effective firepower: Can you shoot enemies from 2 directions at the same time? Are you faster than your enemies? Can you move your ships faster than your enemies? Can you destroy all your enemies before they can hit you? How do you play? Each turn you shoot at some enemy that can be attacked by 1 or 2 ships at a time. You have to shoot each enemy from the opposite direction as a ship can fire in, and no you can't just shoot the same ship in both directions at the same time. Only the first enemy is attacked in each direction. Each enemy can only be attacked once per turn, and only 2 ships can attack them. A ship is faster if it is ahead of the others in a direction. Each ship has one more in that direction than the enemy, and can move 2 spaces at a time. The faster you are, the more extra spaces you have at the end of a turn to move into that direction. If you can hit an enemy from 2 directions at the same time, you get 2 extra spaces to use. If you are the last ship left alive, you win. The board is full of aliens. Can you manage to survive the onslaught? That was my most recent game. I won by a glorious margin. The other half of my fleet was destroyed, but I held on to my victory. I don't even know how to describe it. It's the kind of game that doesn't get old. There is a constant struggle between your various ships, and you have to think about every detail of the game. Play by email. I have not checked to see if you can play with a few friends. The main idea of the game is you and your friends fighting against the other players.
